A Madison patrolman spotted the car at 1:43 p.m. while on duty.

GRANITE CITY — Controversial issues are on some agendas for the annual Granite City Township meeting at the township building at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

"I'd like to see as many people from the township there as possible," said Trustee Woody Moad. "Really, the people need to get out here and run the township the way it should be run."

The public needs to be aware of the meeting so they can talk about what they'd like to see done or continued in the township, Moad said. Most people, he said, do not know about the power they have in the township meeting.

"It seems every year it's held in the background and just a few people attend these meetings," he said. "I would like to see this auditorium filled."

Several issues will be discussed during the meeting, some of which have been argued before the Township Board during the last 12 months.

How the township building is operated and how it will be operated in the future will be raised Tuesday by Granite City Senior Council member John Petish.

"The building really should be operated by three general managers and they should be elected," Petish said. He wants more access to the building for senior citizens.

"I think the people should run that building," Moad said. "They would like me to pass but keys."

Supervisor Nellie Hagnauer said. The building is his responsibility and he can not make it available for a handful of persons, he said.

The issue of Hagnauer's wife, Bernice, working for the township will be raised, Moad said.

"I think legally it's not permissible," he said.

"Let's be honest about it and let the people know what's going on," Moad said.

"Sure it's allowed," Hagnauer said of having his wife as an employee. "It's another ruling that was handed down by the township attorney. He has the case law to back it up."

Venice citizens must clean up

By Valerie Evenden

Citations will be handed out in May to persons whose property is cluttered with debris, junk cars or other trash, 4th Ward Alderman Victor Valentine Sr. warned at Tuesday night's meeting of the Venice City Council.

"Nobody will be crossed out, nobody," the alderman promised, apparently speaking of persons who seek special favors. "We will be getting the sanitation department to check direct, and will be walking through every alley in the 4th Ward during the first week in May," Valentine said.

"A very thorough inspection will be made throughout my ward," he added.

"Debris is everywhere in the alleys," Valentine said. "One man tore a garage down. The wood still is there laying against the fence, and now it's over a month.

"CITATIONS DEFINITELY will be given out. If you have trash and (junk) cars still in your backyard at that time you will be written up," Valentine said.

Venice will participate in the annual spring cleanup drive in the Quad-City Area, scheduled to start Saturday, April 26.

The event will be sponsored by the Community Betterment Committee of the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce.

VALENTINE expressed appreciation to Venice street crews for cleaning up a vacant lot on Bissell Street.

"There is a vast improvement of the area and we appreciate the two cans (trash containers) placed there by the street department. I just hope they are used," he added.

Condition of the lot was brought to the council's attention by Valen-

His wife, Hagnauer said, was employed by the township before he was elected. He said she began working in his office several weeks later.

He added on his wife's behalf, "I would hope that everyone can do the job as well as she does."

Another issue to be brought up is the township supervisor does not conduct township meetings.

"I think the fact that Granite City is a co-terminous township means that the township supervisor does not sit on the Town Board," Hagnauer said.

The township supervisor should be more involved with the day-to-day operations of the township and conduct meetings, Petish said.

"He should be available at the board meetings so he's available for questions and commentary," Petish said.

"We will be trying to change the bylaws," Moad said. "To make the township supervisor attend the meetings, make him conduct those meetings."

The township's bylaws should not be used in place of the state statute that appears to require Hagnauer to attend and conduct the meetings, Petish said.

There is an advantage to having the township supervisor attend township meetings, Moad said.

"We can ask him pointed questions about vacations taken in the township, sick leave, these things," Moad said. "He will be there to be asked questions. And the truth of the matter is he should be running those meetings."

Again concerning seniors, Moad said they should have an office in the township building.

"There's no room in there for that," Hagnauer said.

"Without a doubt we should have an office," Petish said. "We could have a hotline for seniors to answer questions like on Medicare, all kinds of stuff. We've got list of what's available to senior citizens but we need a place to communicate. One central place."

Another matter to be brought up is the township building has no name, Petish said.

The building should be called the Veterans Memorial Town Hall to recognize those in this township who died defending of the nation, he said.

"It'll be like a living memorial," Petish said.

"It's never been discussed with me," Hagnauer said about naming the building. He said the decision about a name to the building would be up to the Town Board.

Hagnauer said the complaints seem to be coming from a few persons with ulterior motives.

"It's strictly political, whoever is bringing it up," he said.

Partney can't halt interviews

By Bill Milligan

Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — David Partney announced late Wednesday he was dropping his effort to halt a second round of interviews between District 9 and seven candidates for elementary school principals.

Partney sought to stop a second round of interviews with a court injunction but was told Wednesday morning, on Wednesday evening, he decided to drop the effort.

"I talked with my lawyer and Eric Robertson. They didn't think it would work," Partney said.

Interviews began at 8 a.m. yesterday. Partney sought more than four board members attended, it will be deemed an official meeting.

Partney sought to preclude the possibility of voting on appointment of four replacements for retiring elementary school principals.

Robertson said he had not rendered a legal opinion in the matter.

"His lawyer is an associate of mine," Robertson said. "They called me. I told them I thought it was the wrong thing to do."

Madison County State's Attorney Dick Allen asked assistant state's attorney Bruce Goldstein to review District 9 executive session policies 10 days ago.

Goldstein said any legal action must be taken within 45 days of an infraction. Plans are to announce the results of an objective investigation soon.

"There are two possible outcomes (if action is taken)," Goldstein said. "There could either be criminal or civil charges filed. Ordinarily, in cases where no allegations of bad faith exist, civil charges are pursued."

"Mr. Partney has a right to request an investigation. There is nothing out of the ordinary in this request. We generally follow up all such requests," Goldstein said.

Ticket truckers

GRANITE CITY — Fifth Ward aldermen Lloyd Bailey and Jack Varadian want tickets issued to any who park semis in their ward. Warning tickets were being issued by police, but Varadian said most truckers ignore the warnings. Tickets will solve the problem, he said.

"If they're violating the law they're violating the law and should get a ticket," Mayor Von DeCruse said.

The tickets will be issued.

Crossing the street safer

By Bill Bagby

GRANITE CITY — Little children are always taught things like, "Look both ways before you cross the street."

But for some students at Granite City High School, looking both ways is not enough.

"Problems have surfaced for months about the safety of students crossing Madison Avenue between National Food Store and Payless Shoe Source."

STUDENTS HAVE BEEN struck by automobiles twice this school year, plus many "near misses." The blame has been put on both sides: students jaywalking and rushing in and out of traffic, and cars speeding and ignoring warning signs.

Police, school officials, parents and concerned individuals have talked about solutions to the problem. It even reached the floor of the City Council last month when the aldermen approved placing an additional caution sign near the crosswalk.

However, last Thursday a partial solution came to the longtime problem.

MAYOR VON DE CRUSE said Thursday a crossing guard would be put at the crosswalk. And one was.

Warren Carney, 65, a retired military man, began his task, armed with a red stop sign, making sure the students crossed the busy street safely.

It's not a new job for Carney. He's been around dangerous crosswalks before, but nothing like this one, he admitted.

"I used to think the one at Nurecki and Victory was bad, but I think this one is worse," he said. "THIS IS A BAD place and I'm glad to see the mayor has done something about it," he added.

His efforts in stopping traffic so students can safely pass have been successful in most cases.

"I put the sign up and some people still don't stop," he said.

He says, however, that he's still pretty swift, even at 65.

"I CAN'T RUN as fast as these younger fellas," he said, "but I

Crossing guard at high school

By Jack C. Ventimiglia

GRANITE CITY — Another near-miss of a pedestrian near the high school was too much for Mayor Von DeCruse.

"I'm going to put a crossing guard at the high school," he said Thursday. The guard was dispatched the same day.

Some drivers are ignoring traffic signs and lights at the high school and some students are acting irresponsibly, he said. The combination could result in somebody getting injured in the area.

Twice this school year students have been struck by vehicles near the high school.

"It's going to cost us for an additional crossing guard, but we've got to do something," Cruse said. "I'll try anything we can do to relieve that problem out there," Police Chief Bill Harris said.

An alternate crossing guard will be placed at the high school to protect students, Harris said. He also plans to have patrols in the area to watch motorists. Jaywalking and drivers' disregard for traffic signs must cease, he said.

The high school principal has been asked to make an announcement that the police mean business, he said.

A traffic light is needed by the National store to further reduce the risk to students, Cruse said.

"I want a light up there," he said. "I don't care what it takes."

The decision to use a crossing guard in the area follows other action taken by police to stop the risk of injury to the students. Harris tried earlier to issue jaywalking tickets, but he said it didn't stop the youngsters.

The City Council took action March 18 to help reduce traffic danger at the high school. They voted to place another caution sign on Madison Avenue south of the Payless Shoe Source.

The sign is supposed to tell motorists of the crossing area near the store. Motorists come too quickly to the existing caution sign for it to be effective, it was stated.

A CROSSING GUARD is now on duty on Madison Avenue near Granite City High School.

Citywide trash pickup on Wednesdays

TRASH PICKUPS in Granite City are now scheduled on Wednesdays. Laidlaw Waste Systems Inc. began the new collection date citywide last Wednesday. "A number of cities are doing it like this, anyway," said Ervin DeRouse, city inspector. "This way, you don't have cans setting around all weekend long and you can get the trash out all in one day." Residents are being urged to have their trash ready for collection on Wednesdays.

Circus returns?

Several times during the year the way township business is conducted has been criticized by some Granite City aidmen and citizens.

Resulting has been backlash at the criticism. The township's administration has strong support from those who think it is operating as it should.

We compared conduct at the township meeting in August to a circus.

Opposing sides will meet during the annual township meeting at the township hall on Tuesday at 7 p.m. How they conduct themselves will set the tone for the following year.

Several controversial issues will be raised. To be discussed is naming the township building, office space for senior citizens, more use of the township building by seniors, having Supervisor Nellie Hagnauer begin to conduct township meetings and the fairness of using public money to have Hagnauer's wife work for the township.

Tempers may flare and the meeting could once more become a circus if the township's leadership and citizens ignore one another's opinions.

The township attorney's opinion has been rendered on several issues that will come up Tuesday. He will likely be called to reiterate those opinions. If the opposition brings in contradictory legal opinions, the result will be increased disharmony.

There are three obvious outcomes to this scenario of point-counterpoint politics:

1) Nothing will be resolved and everyone will leave the meeting divided and imbedded in their opinions. Disharmony will continue. The public can expect another year of arguments because both sides think they are right and neither will compromise.

2) The township could be taken to court by the opposition. The court is the only sure place to test divergent legal opinions. A stalemate on certain issues could result in a suit if the opposition can afford to use its own money against the taxpayers' money being used to employ the township attorney.

3) Another option is a compromise between the sides on at least some issues. Areas where disagreement shouldn't be great are naming the building and having the supervisor attend township meetings.

Naming the building has been publicly discussed. A citizen is in line. Only those looking for an argument would find fault with the suggestion. It is an idea that it seems everyone can use as a source of agreement. Agreeing on one issue might help bring the sides closer and diffuse some of the animosity.

Having Hagnauer attend meetings also seems practical. There may be some legal reason that allows him not to attend, or even a legal reason that mandates he can't head the Town Board meeting. But we are sure no law forces him to be absent. We would hope he'd choose to attend. Having him present during the usually brief Town Board meetings would entice criticism at that point and allow the public and board members to ask questions of him about the township.

Concerning more access to the township building by seniors and having an office in the building for them, these are points that should be publicly discussed.

Hagnauer is right in saying he can't just hand over the keys to anyone, but we wonder if more effort on his part would not result in arrangements being made to expand hours. And we wonder if a compromise here wouldn't be possible if some seniors were a bit less demanding. In any case, allowing the public to hear discussion on the issue would let them decide what's best and they could voice their opinions in the form of a vote at the township meeting.

Concerning office space for seniors, the building is large and it seems a small area could be set aside. If they need to store material or set up a senior hotline, the township building is a good location for the worthwhile endeavor. But it may be the space really isn't available. Again, public discussion on the matter might provide a clear picture of what the problem is and perhaps it will culminate in a decision that everyone can understand.

Concerning Hagnauer's wife working for the township, there's really no room for negotiation and compromise. Either it's right or not, depending on whose opinion is believed. If the issue continues to come up, it is one that a court will ultimately have to decide.

Overall, an effort should be made by each side to be understanding of the other. Booming a person exercising a Constitutional right to question how his government operates is appalling. Verbally attacking public officials cannot be condoned.

What we hope to see is an even-handed meeting where the issues are rationally presented, where they are rationally discussed, where compromise is attempted, where issues that can't be compromised end in gentlemanly fashion.

That's not asking too much. Both sides have the best interest of the township at heart. If all the energy being used to keep the sides apart can be brought together, rather than another year of strife it could be a very good year in Granite City Township.

In our opinion, it's time for the circus to leave town.

Understand others, and ourselves

We enjoyed a beautiful Easter afternoon with a family which had invited 12 international students to share a buffet dinner.

It was a beautiful experience of sharing, singing, and conversation that was hard to break up. The good will evidenced in that diverse group of students from around the world was impressive.

It was a delicious contrast to the eruptions of violence that mar our relationships both personally and internationally.

The explanation for those marred relationships is probably found in our own collective inner conflicts. At least that indicated in James 4:1, where we read: "What causes wars, and what causes fightings among you? Is it not your passions that are at war in your members?"

Hostile attitudes that emerge from sick and divided personalities shape the sickness of our society.

We have become so thoroughly enmeshed with technological and material progress that we have lost sight of the desperate necessity for simply understanding other persons and ourselves. Those who refuse to strive for understanding betray their own insecurity and hostility.

Yet if we could only know the real feelings of other persons, their problems, their heartaches, their frustrations, their hopes, we might discover a sympathy that borders on love. We might even achieve a larger measure of tranquility and patience especially if we learned not to expect more of others than we do of ourselves.

While we have the ability to erupt over the perceived shortcomings of other persons or nations, we have an almost infinite capacity for self-deception and rationalization for our own failures. "Who can understand his errors? Cleanse thou me from secret faults," was the prayer of the Psalmist (Psalm 18:2). He recognized the powerful blight of inner conflicts when he called for the Lord's healing.

Alfred Tennyson's poem "In Memoriam" speaks of "working out the beast and letting the ape and tiger die." But, of course, after you have gotten rid of the ape and the tiger, there still remains the donkey, which is a much more stubborn animal.

All of which leads me to say that if we want a world of good will and loving relationships, the best place is to start with ourselves. We ought not to expect others to change their attitudes before we change our own. "So far as it depends upon you, live peaceably with all." (Romans 12:18)

That beginning could well be found in the comments made by Professor Rufus Jones, an American philosopher who said, "Let a person's inner being be fortified with a faith in God and all his creative powers are quickened, his marching strength is heightened, and his grip on everyday things is immensely increased. It is as though he has tapped a hidden reservoir of power."

There is no magic formula which we can repeat from memory that will heal our inward conflicts.

What is called for is a determined love for others, with spiritual discipline, constant self-scrutiny, and the development of inner resources of courage and faith.

Sounds hard? It is! Is it really worth the effort? You can bet your life on it!

Volunteers considered community asset

Volunteer: One who gives unselfishly of his or her time to help another person or to help promote a worthy cause.

Many people in the Quad-City Area have found giving of their time to be self-satisfying and they do this without thought of thanks, honors or public recognition.

People who can feel the need to help are a rare breed in this day

Donna Kimbro and age when it seems many are intent upon making the most happen for themselves.

This process seems to begin with young parents when they become involved in school activities and work in the PTA, with scouting programs or in sports activities, and fund-raising drives to help the school projects.

Once one is initiated into this kind of payless position, there are no bounds to where one can volunteer. Through the years, young adults become more involved in church activities and then social, civic or fraternal organizations that also sponsor fund-raisers. This is very prevalent in this area and now it seems many senior citizens have found areas of need.

Communication not automatic

James R. "Big Jim" Thompson may not score 100 percent on candor. He hasn't yet lost Illinois to an adequate, Front-runner image by campaigning Downstate in lumberjack shirt and jeans, even though he really did own a tie, white shirt and suit for Chicago appearances. But frankness — willingness to communicate freely — nevertheless has done a lot for him.

If he becomes Illinois' first four-term governor by winning the Nov. 4 election, it will be largely because of two things: the administrative skill he has honed, as the state's chief executive for the past decade, and his policy of informing the public "every time he hiccups or crosses the room."

There may be some wasteful aspects of the state's public information mechanism. But on the whole, it is a "plus" that so much effort is made day in and day out to keep citizens well informed.

Surprisingly, many officials and would-be officials have not realized the importance of full, open and frequent communication.

Democratic statewide candidates obviously did not get their message out, or they would not have lost three of the seven March 18 nominations, including two captured by followers of radical Lyndon LaRouche. The state-slanted candidates did make a quick, joint, fly-around one late-winter day to get on the 6 o'clock TV news in a few major population areas, but little else was heard from them. When Adlai Stevenson participated in interviews on why he should be elected governor, usually no mention was made by him of his fellow candidates.

Meanwhile, the Office of the Governor and various other elective and appointive offices, bureaus and agencies via Springfield, communicated regularly with the Press-Record/Journal. It wasn't political, but the dispatches made clear that present public servants were not resting on their laurels or easy chairs.

We learned Thursday, for example, that Luanne Schwaninger had been appointed as Illinois women's business advocate "to help the fastest-growing segment of the small business community." Six hearings will be held in April, May and June to gather public response to new proposals to protect groundwater quality; the 1986 spring/summer Illinois Calendar of Events is now available to help guide travelers to "exciting events in every region." Project Chance, the state's new program to place welfare recipients into private employment, has a goal of 100,000 placements over the next three years, we were told; and 23 Japanese business leaders have arrived in Illinois to discuss the state's business and industrial climate (the group includes Minoru Hashimoto of Nippon Kokan, half-owner of Granite City Steel).

Contact with all of Illinois is far from automatic, as the Democratic standard-bearers learned the hard way; you have to work hard to achieve it.

Even when there were televised Thompson-Stevenson debates in 1982, it was hard for voters to find them on the tube, in many sections of Illinois. No one publication is read by a majority of Illinois voters, although close to 70 percent of the state's Democrats are said to reside in Chicago and the surrounding "collar area."

What it takes is a wide-open approach to news and publicity dissemination / and tireless criss-crossing of territory that, Illinois records show, includes hundreds of thousands of highway miles.

President Ronald Reagan is popularly known as "The Great Communicator." But Jim Thompson, who, would like Reagan's job some day, is also an adept communicator, as he proved in many courtrooms, including his 1971-75 service as U.S. attorney for the Northern District of Illinois.

It's a bit late to speculate whether State Sen. George Sangmeister would be the Democratic lieutenant governor nominee and sponsor, Stevenson, done a bit more name-dropping in public talks and hand-shaking tours.

For most of Illinois' 168-year history, Sangmeister's primary loss would not have created such a gigantic problem for his party. But the governor and lieutenant governor nominees were paired as a team on Illinois general election ballots, under a statute adopted after Republican Richard Ogilvie won as governor and Democrat Paul Simon won as lieutenant governor in 1968.

Ironically, the situation that law remedied wasn't really a problem. Simon earned his salary by working as citizens' ombudsman rather than as the governor's aide, and both men adhered to informal rules of civility; the Democrat didn't wield a veto pen or pardon criminals whenever the Republican had to travel outside the state.

The much more serious consequences of the 1986 primary — would you want a Mark Fairchild to succeed a disabled governor? — have prompted Stevenson to leave the ticket, apparently to form a new party.

Illinois Democrats are paying dearly for their "failure to communicate," an error that Republican Thompson so far has avoided.

Special training on April 10 for Madison faculty

By Donna Kimbro
Staff writer

MADISON — Special training for teachers on emergency care and aid to students who are victims of epilepsy will be given April 10 at 2:30 p.m. at the Middle School.

Superintendent of Schools John Palchett on Tuesday night requested approval of the Board of Education for a one-hour early dismissal for the teachers so they can participate in the educational course. A representative of the Epilepsy Foundation will be the guest speaker.

Since many of the teachers do not know how to deal with this illness, they are interested and have agreed to attend the class, Palchett said.

The board approved the retirement request of James Gardner effective at the close of the school year. A 40-year teacher in the Madison district, Gardner first taught at Dunbar School and later became a business education teacher at Madison High School.

The board also accepted the resignation of Charles Steptoe as coordinator of Belleville Area College programs at Madison High. After 12 years' BAC night school service, the faculty member said he no longer has the time to continue with the program.

Board members authorized April 6 field trips for second and third grade students at Harlan School to visit the Continental Bakery in St. Louis and fourth graders at Louis Baer School to tour the science center at Forest Park.

Also, permission was given for Madison High School band members to go to Chicago April 24-25. They will be accompanied by six adults and all money for expenses has been earned by the band members, Palchett said.

Board members discussed other activities planned for this month, including the Quad-City Area's Job Fair for the Handicapped to take place in Engelbert Hall, Madison, on April 11 and a National Honor Society recognition dinner scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Thursday, April 24, at MRS.

Caroline Sandor, cafeteria director, was granted permission for the school cooks to attend a Madison County Food Services Association spring dinner April 15 in East Alton.

Dolores Folkerts, curriculum director, said Linda Masters and Valerie Stevens will attend the Excellence in Art conference in Garbondale in conjunction with a comprehensive art grant the district received.

Billie Bosworth, board president, reviewed a meeting she and others attended in Mount Vernon on evaluation of teachers and school personnel.

"This is going to be mandatory and as a board we are going to be involved as representatives. Work must be started to meet the deadlines on policy and plans by Oct. 1," she said.

"We have been conducting the evaluation project every two years. However, this is much more extensive and must be done for administrators and certified and non-certified personnel," the president said.

Reading, learning success formula

GRANITE CITY — Research shows that children who have been exposed to reading have a better chance at success in formal learning, according to Granite City library officials; moreover, 50 percent of intellectual development occurs between birth and four years of age.

The public library has long been concerned with promoting reading to children, and today it is placing even greater emphasis on family reading activities to help fight America's growing literacy problem. Story time, crafts, and guest speakers are among local programs aimed at halting adverse reading trends.

Story times are every Thursday, 10 to 10:30 a.m. at the main library, 2001 Delmar Ave. The branch library conducts story time at 1:30 to 2 p.m. every Thursday. The branch library is located at 2020 Johnson Road.

Craft sessions are held the first two Saturdays of each month from 2 to 3 p.m. in the Children's Department of the main library. Children need to be at least three years of age to attend story time and at least six years of age to attend the craft sessions.

The library is offering information about National Library Week at 452-6238.

Fire hydrants being tested

Illinois-American Water Co. is testing all fire hydrants within Granite City, Madison, Venice and Nameoki Township.

Water pressure readings and gallons-per-minute flows will be calculated and documented at this time.

These tests enable the water company to determine the condition and the reliability of each hydrant in the system, a spokesman said.

The flushing of the hydrants requires huge amounts of water and there will be discoloration in tap water in the immediate area of the flushings. The water is safe to drink or use and will return to normal within a few hours, the spokesman added.

Easter egg hunt winners

By Valerie Evenden

Staff writer

More than 50 youngsters took part in the Venice Park District's first Easter egg hunt, held Saturday in Lee Park.

Anna Claggett, Venice Park commissioner, and recreation chairman, and Green Jacks of the Venice Lions Club were in charge of the project.

The event, which may turn into an annual affair, was co-sponsored by the Lions and Venice Park District.

Trophies were awarded to three children who collected the most eggs in their respective age groups.

Kevin Nelson won the first place trophy in the 6 years and under age group. Valerie Woolford was the winner in the 7 through 9 group and Lawanda Richardson was the top contestant in the 10 through 12 age level.

In addition to the colorful hard-boiled eggs hidden about the park, 10 bright blue eggs were also placed in special places for the children to find.

Those successful in finding the blue eggs were presented various prizes, including dolls, Easter baskets and Cabbage Patch lamps.

The gifts were arranged by Mayor Tyrone Echols and Bob Boothman.

Boothman, proprietor of Bob's Red Fox Market on Broadway, also donated the eggs for the hunt.

E. A. KARANDJEFF

Chairman
Central Bank of Granite City

Q. As a young person, just starting out in the business world and standing on my own feet, I hear a lot about credit. I have a credit account at one of the local department stores and make my monthly payments. What more do I need to know about credit?

A. Credit, and the way you approach it, can lead to a better lifestyle or can cause severe hardships. Without credit, most of us couldn't live where we live, drive what we drive, dress the way we dress or enjoy the things we enjoy. The tricky part of staying on the good side of credit is to use it wisely. To keep finance charges at a minimum and your credit rating high, pay all bills promptly. Include the amount you allow for charge purchases in your monthly budget unless there is a real emergency. Then, adjust subsequent monthly budgets to take up the slack. Almost no credit purchase is worth it if you have to sacrifice the fixed amount you save each month just to make credit payments. Establish your credit, then use it wisely.

Gabriel Shrine holds installation

A public installation at the Masonic Temple was held for newly-selected officers of Gabriel Shrine 78, Order of the White Shrine of Jerusalem.

The opening ceremony was the lighting of candles by Johnna and James Williams, followed by introduction of present and past supreme officers, past worthy high priestesses and past watchmen of shepherds. Past Supreme Worthy High Priestess Ruth Hartoe was seated in the East for the evening.

The new corps of officers entered the chapter room and formed an emblem of the order as The Lord's Prayer was sung by Lois Bilbrey. Presentation of the American flag was given by Ralph Baker, worshipful master of Masonic Lodge 877. The ode to the flag was given by Angela and Andrea Vasquez.

Bethel 43, Order of Job's Daughters, presented the formation of the cross as co-workers from neighboring shrines formed the emblem of the cross. The James Stuart Chapter of DeMolay gave the nine o'clock interposition.

Dorothy Watkins, installing worthy high priestess, installed Della Aulabaugh, who was presented with a nosegay by Lisa Isham and was escorted to her station by her niece, Betty Brooks of Homestead, Fla. Lois Ann Bilbrey sang "How Great Thou Art" in her honor.

John R. Williams took his oath of office as watchman of shepherds, and was installed by Watchman of Shepherds Oco Woods. Williams was escorted to his station by his wife, Sue Williams, as Mrs. Bilbrey sang "Reach Out and Touch."

After Noble Prophetess Donna Thomas and Associate Watchman of Shepherds Henry Thomas were installed, Mrs. Bilbrey sang "People" in their honor.

Other officers installed were

Karen Bronsman, scribe; Mary Ann DeHart, treasurer; Helen Schwendemann, chaplain; Dorothy Watkins, shepherdess; and Lena Wood, guide.

Appointive officers included Dorothy Edwards, herald; Lois Hebblethwaite, Shirley Schilling and Shirley Schwendemann, wisemen; Evelyn Nane, queen; Mary Hoover, Lucille Tabor and Gladys Fuhrman, handmaids; Guylla Stuart, organist; Alice Woods, guardian; and Wendell Gritz, guard.

Honorary appointive officers were Edith Smith, Sue Williams, Ruth Novacich, Earl French, Marie Baker, Edith Carpenter, Nora Gibbons and Effie Johnson.

Past officer jewels were presented by Mary Ellen Lewis to Edna Brown, retiring worthy high priestess, and by Sue Williams to her husband, John Williams, junior past watchman of shepherds.

Receiving officers for the evening were Edna Brown, John Williams, Georgia Odom and Mary Bilbrey. Installing officers included Dorothy Watkins, Oco Woods, Mary Ann DeHart, Karen Edmonds, Georgia Odom, Lois Bilbrey, Mary Ellen Lewis and Ruth Cox. Escorts were Wendell Gritz, Alice Woods, Joe Bilbrey, Delbert McKissick, Earl French and John Ebersson.

Virginia John and Bess Henley presided over the guest book and Rhonda DeShasier distributed programs. Assisting at the reception were Betty McClintock, Karen Edmonds, Sue Williams, Marie Baker, Peggy Gibbons, Rachael Lee, Mary French, Mary Hoover, Donna Kagy and Edith Smith.

Guard

told the (police) chief I would do it.

"Though students have taken some of the blame for the problems, Carney is still partial to them."

"They're a pretty good bunch of kids," he said.

Many of the students who use the crosswalk daily are pleased they can now cross Madison Avenue with some degree of safety.

"IT'S ABOUT TIME something was done here," said Rick Genovese, 15.

In November, Genovese was struck by a van and truck in another crosswalk near the high school. And, several days after he returned to school he was almost hit again.

"The cars don't want to stop for nobody," he said. "They got the (warning) signs but the cars keep on cruisin' through."

"I think it's good because cars don't stop when their supposed to," said Becky Kramer, 17.

BUT THE CARS, Kramer said, aren't the only problem.

"They (the students) just don't look before they walk across."

"I think it is a good idea," said Melissa Pinkham, 17. "I could stand here 20 minutes trying to cross and the cars wouldn't stop."

Other students see the crosswalk guard as a step back instead of an improvement.

"I think it's very childish," said Chad Faggett, 14. "The cars don't really want to stop and the students don't want to wait for the cars to stop."

SCHOOL AND POLICE officials are breathing easier now that the crosswalk guard has been added.

"I am extremely pleased about this problem," said Gilbert Walmsley, principal of the high school. "I am predicting that it will be a solution to the problem."

"We had trouble with a couple of motorists that didn't stop but we didn't issue any tickets," said Police Chief Bill Harris.

A study is being made into the feasibility of putting a crosswalk light in, Harris said. In the meantime the crosswalk guard will provide short-range insurance that students can cross safely.

"IT'S THE BEST solution for the time being," he said.

New deadline on steel talks

By Bill Winter

Staff writer

Negotiators for Granite City Steel and its steelworkers resumed their talks in Pittsburgh April 1 and are trying to reach agreement by Tuesday, April 8.

The deadline was changed from March 31 to April 8 after both parties noted progress was being made toward reaching an accord.

THE NEGOTIATIONS for a new National Steel Corp. contract effective this summer began March 5 and continued on a regular basis until the Easter weekend recess.

Those representing the United Steelworkers of America in the bargaining include Buddy W. Davis, District 34 director, and Jim Kelahan of Granite City, staff representative.

Davis and Stanley Ellspermann, National Steel vice president of human resources, in late March reported significant progress had been made on some issues and said discussion of additional issues also was going well. They declined to give details.

THE TALKS relate to 7,000 steelworkers at NSC plants in Granite City (Granite City Steel), Ecorse, Mich. (Great Lakes Steel), and Portage, Ind. (Midwest Steel).

hospital in varied capacities as volunteers and they certainly give an incentive to other people. Some seniors are serving as tutors for school children who need extra help in the learning process. There are baby-sitting duties at Granite City Campus, where the older citizens entertain and watch over children of students while the parents are in class.

When a disaster hits—whether it is a fire making a family homeless, a child with a terminal illness, or an elderly person in need of aid—there is always some volunteer out there willing to work on a benefit to provide the assistance another person needs.

Have you ever been aggravated at a road block when people come up to your car for a donation to help some cause? Think about those persons giving their time to collect money, whether it is a cold, windy, rainy day or the temperature hits a high of 90 degrees.

There are so many people doing something for another human being, or supporting a project, that I could go on forever listing them.

The "bottom line" is that, if you know volunteers, just say, "Thank you for whatever they are involved in and let them know they are needed and appreciated."

routine patrol of the highway. The car had travelled a short distance down a steep embankment.

Gina Owens, who gave the name, was at St. Elizabeth Medical Center, told police she was headed north on Illinois 203 when an argument between her and Larry Sidwell ensued. According to her, Sidwell grabbed the steering wheel and yanked it, causing the vehicle to cross the centerline and enter a ditch on the west side of the roadway.

She suffered neck and lower back injuries and Sidwell suffered cuts and abrasions. The infant's face and eyes were covered with glass, according to the Madison Fire Department ambulance crew. All three, as well as the two Sidwell toddlers, were transported to SEMC where they were treated and later released.

Owens was charged with driving while her license was suspended and failure to use child restraints. None of the children were in car seats. She was taken to the Madison Police Department after being treated for her injuries.

Sidwell was charged with illegal possession of an alcoholic beverage. Police reportedly found an open bottle of whiskey in his lap.

Collins' slam beats Trojans

By Dave Whaley

Staff writer
MADISON — He runs. He shoots. He hits.

Jimmy Collins of East St. Louis Assumption is truly a three-sport star. He's going to the University of Illinois this fall to be a running back for the Illini. And he was one of the leading scorers and rebounders in the area this past basketball season.

Thursday afternoon, he showed Madison his abilities in yet another sport. The stocky first baseman slugged an opposite field grand slam to key a Pioneer explosion that carried them to an 11-2 triumph over the Trojans. The win left the Pioneers at 2-3-1 on the season, while Madison fell to 0-3.

"Baseball might be his best sport," said Assumption Coach Jim Monken, who should know. He also coached Collins during the football season. "We had a game last week where he hit one about 500 feet."

His slam Thursday didn't go that far, but it was an impressive blast. The Trojans, who had been outscored 31-0 in their first two games, had broken through in the fourth inning with two runs to take the lead and Patrick Glasper was working on a two-hit shutout as he started the fifth inning.

But the senior right-hander hit a wild streak. With two on and two out with walks, Glasper walked Eric Donaby on a 3-2 delivery, bringing up Collins.

With a 2-1 count on him, Collins, a left-handed hitter, sent a towering shot deep into the left field corner. All three runners aboard scored easily and Collins, showing the running form that makes him a top-flight running back, also circled the bases before left fielder Antonio Wellmaker could retrieve the ball.

"We only have one senior on our team, and that's Jimmy," Monken said. "So we like to have him at the plate in spots like that. It worked out well."

Glasper gave up a walk and a hit after the slam, but escaped with no further runs being scored.

The Trojans ended their season-long scoring drought in the fourth, but not after missing chances in the first and third. Derek Treadway led off the first with a walk and Chandler Terrell was hit by a pitch. Darnell Marshall got an infield hit, and catcher John Browley, the cleanup hitter, was up.

He struck out and Dennis Vaulter hit back to the pitcher. Dave Clark, who got a forecourt at home, Wellmaker then fanned to end the inning.

Stephen Boyd led off the Madison fourth with a walk and reached second on an error. Vincent Valentine and Treadway struck out, but Terrell walked to fill the bases. Marshall then hit a chopper that third baseman Shawn Gaines couldn't handle, and Boyd scored.

Browley then was nicked on the helmet by a pitch to force in another run, although Monken argued Browley hadn't made an attempt to avoid the pitch.

But Clark set down the last seven Madison hitters, and the game was called in the top of the seventh because of darkness.

The Pioneers, meanwhile, add-

Reflections of Whitey

By Greg Maracek

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — It was early in the morning, about 8 o'clock, but already the warm Florida sun was pushing 70. A few bleary-eyed Redbirds moped slowly onto the Al Lang Stadium turf to loosen up or just sit in the sun on a perfect morning.

There was no hurry. Practice on a game day doesn't begin until 10 o'clock. For the early Birds, there was time to talk with teammates, do media interviews or just be alone.

Bounding out of the dugout came the skipper, the best manager in the game, Whitey Herzog. He always has a bounce in his walk and a smile on his weathered face. He loves the game and shows it better than almost anybody else.

"This day he took time out to sit down in the left field bullpen where he could watch the sailboats moving out into Tampa Bay. He just talked baseball."

Q: Whitey, what was the turning point of 1985?

A: I think after Coleman came up and started playing so well, I really felt that things were starting to fall in place. I felt at the time we could be in the race because we had three starting pitchers pitching outstanding baseball.

Q: Our bullpen had proved it was going to be able to do the job. You can almost sense when you're going to go good or bad.

Q: Of all your playoff teams in St. Louis and Kansas City, which one team had the best athletes?

A: The athletes I have on this Cardinals team are the best. I said this year: Since my bench will be a lot younger, I think I will end up having my best 24 athletes ever.

Q: Which team had the most heart and was the most fun?

A: It was last year's Cardinals. For that team to win 101 games in our division, seven in post-season playoffs and fall one short of a World Championship — they had to have a lot of heart to go that far.

Q: You've said this spring, this may be the best defensive team in the majors if not in all of baseball history. Do you really think that's true?

A: That's right. We've got the best defensive team in baseball.

We have Mike Heath catching, and Jack Clark's become a very good first baseman — not a gold glove, but good.

We've got Tommy (Herr) who's playing very well at second. He has good range and has sure hands. Ozzie's the best at short, a gold glove third baseman. Our three outfielders, Coleman, Willie Terry Pendleton, after June, was McGee and either Andy Van Slyke or Tito Landrum have great speed and instincts.

Q: In the bullpen, Todd Worrell wants to be the regular stopper. Will it still be bullpen by committee or can one reliever take over?

A: I've got two guys who can stop a rally. I mean I don't think I'm going to let Worrell pitch to Tony Gwynn (San Diego) in the ninth with two outs whether he's struck out five in a row or not. If I've got Ken Dayley out in the pen, he's going to pitch to the left-handers.

That's a luxury to have two good arms, one right and one left out there. If Worrell does become a dominant stopper, I would give him the ball in the eighth and ninth innings and go to Dayley early in the game.

Q: Who has impressed you this spring?

A: Johnny Morris, the young outfielder we got for Lonnie Smith from Kansas City has had a fine spring. I also like left-hander Greg Matheus an awful lot. I don't really like to blow people like that up and then have to let them down, but I think potentially they're going to be fine major leaguers.

Q: What is the effect of the new 24-man player limit?

A: I think you have to constitute the makeup of your ball club a little differently. If everybody else has 24 it won't be a disadvantage to the Cardinals. I think we've looked far enough ahead. I've got our bench going in the direction of everybody being able to play several positions. Clint Hurdle, Brian Harper and Curt Ford are three who can play multiple spots for us.

Q: The Cardinals were 36 games over .500 vs. right-handers and only four games over .500 vs. left-handers. How are you trying to improve the record against left-handed pitching?

A: Good offensive production from Tito Landrum is important. Against left-handers, Landrum will bat fifth after Clark, and only if Landrum is a hitting threat, will Clark see any decent pitches to hit.

Heath's bat will help, too. Now we can back up Clark with Landrum and Heath, and of course, we have the five switch-hitters. We ought to be better against the lefties.

Q: They say it's so hard to repeat a championship. Why?

A: I don't believe it's hard to repeat. We had the best record here in '81 and '82. I repeated three times in KC. I think the NL East is so evenly balanced, that the team that plays the best each year wins. The Mets say they've had the best team the last two years and haven't won. Since nobody's picking us to win, we might sneak in.

Q: What do you think of being considered the best manager in baseball?

A: I like to think I can be the best at everything I do. I don't want to blow my own horn, but I do enjoy matching wits against other managers. Basically a manager cannot win ball games, only lose them.

The manager puts people in position to win ball games. If those people don't produce, I don't care how many moves you make, you aren't going to win.

I've heard people say a manager is worth 30-40 games. I'd like to think that a manager can lose 25 games doing a bad job.

Trojan relay teams sweep meet

COLUMBIA — The Madison boys track team swept all four relay events as the Trojans rolled to their fourth straight victory in tri-meet action Wednesday.

It was another fairly easy win for the Trojans, who scored 93 points in the meet, compared with 46 for Columbia and 36 for Chester.

Duane Walker and Reggie Young took the 400 relay in 1:36.9, while the Trojans had nine other individual champions, compared to only three for Chester and one for Columbia.

Greene took first in the 110-meter high hurdles (16.9 seconds); Terence Hicks and Jesse Leonard tied for first in the 100-meter dash (11.6); Starnes won the 800-meter run (2:12.6); Delarren Young took the 400-meter dash (53.2); Mike Taylor won the 300-meter low hurdles (41.6); Duane Hicks took the 200-meter dash (23.3); Darrell McCormick won the shot put (42'5"); and Reggie Young took both the triple jump (42'3/4") and long jump (20').

Madison also picked up six second place finishes and five third place finishes. The Trojans are home tomorrow for a meet against Collinsville starting at 3:30 p.m.

SLIDING HOME: Granite City's Karen Sykes slides home with a run in Wednesday's game with Belleville. The Warriors lost to Mascoutah 10-3 on Thursday and also lost third baseman Kim Armour for at least three weeks with a broken foot. They host East St. Louis Monday at 4 p.m. in a Southwestern Conference game.

ed to their lead with a six-run fifth, highlighted by a RBI triple by Chris Harris, an RBI double by Donaby, another RBI by Collins in infield grounder (which was booted by Boyd, allowing another run to score) and a two-run homer by Tim Rainey.

The final run scored in the seventh when Albert Harper walked four straight batters, including Gaines, who got the RBI. The game was called after that walk.

"We had a kid get hit by a throw last week when it was getting dark," Monken said. "There's no reason to be playing at this time of day and getting somebody hurt."

Madison will try it again Monday when they host Triad in a 4 p.m. game.

New Cardinal

Heath's hustle fits Cardinals

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — The old baseball adage says a championship team must be strong up the middle — from behind the plate to the center field wall.

The '85 Cardinals survived with a weak link in that chain — catcher — was an obviously vulnerable spot in the otherwise ironclad defense.

But during the off-season, St. Louis upgraded its weak spot with the acquisition of Gary Carter look-alike, Mike Heath.

Selected by the New York Yankees in the second round of the free-agent draft in 1973, Heath was later traded through the minor league system to the Texas Rangers in 1978 and a year later ended up in Oakland.

The A's gave Heath his first big league shot, and over the next 74 games in '80, he performed well enough to stay permanently.

After part-time duty again in '80, Heath caught on as the number one backstop for Oakland in '82 and continued until traded to the Cardinals along with left-hander Mike Conroy in exchange for pitcher Joaquin Andujar.

What has come to the contending Cards meant to the aggressive, hard-working 31-year-old? "It makes me feel good. I come over here and I see a team that has been THREAT the last few years — right at the top of the heap, and still they've kept their aggressiveness."

The 5-11, 180-pounder who throws and bats right-handed brings to the Cards two important qualities — he blocks the pitched ball extremely well, keeping the runners from advancing and he sports a good-looking 35 percent success rate in throwing out would-be base stealers. Cardinal catchers haven't sniffed a figure nearly that high in years.

Mike Heath

But Heath points out that pitchers too, play a role in a catcher's success pegging out base stealers. If they don't keep the runners close, even Heath won't improve on the totals.

"I think the one thing any pitcher has to give the catcher is an opportunity to throw somebody out," said Heath. "It's an aggressive league of runners, and the Astroturf fields in the National League give runners an edge of a couple of steps."

"I can't go out there and rush myself getting rid of the ball. I'm going to do the satchem mechanics that have always worked for me."

While the success of his shotgun arm is yet to be proven in the National League, his solid catching habits have evident in St. Pete. Offensively he's "wowed" the crowds a few times as well.

In his first Cardinal plate appearance in an intrasquad contest, Heath blasted a towering
